SPEAKERS

Carolina Valdez is an associate professor of elementary and bilingual education and earned her doctorate in urban schooling at UCLA. Her research interests focus on ethnic studies and teacher organizing, and in 2012 she helped establish the People's Education Movement for educators of color. The organization's work was documented in her co-authored 2016 article "Solidarity with the People: Organizing to Disrupt Teacher Alienation, published in Equity and Excellence in Education."

Michelle Soto-Peña, Ph.D. is an Assistant Professor at CSUF College of Education in the Department of Elementary and Bilingual Education. Her research interest lie in access and equity in dual language immersion programs with a particular focus on the intersections of language development and ethnic studies. Her work also informs her role as advisor and member of several educational advocacy organizations that work toward educational equity for emergent bilinguals.

Abigail Amoako Kayser, Ph.D. is an Assistant Professor at the College of Education at California State University, Fullerton in the Department of Elementary and Bilingual Education. She is a Fulbright Scholar and a former elementary teacher. Through her research and teaching, she aims to advance our understanding of how teachers ensure equitable and anti-racist educational experiences and outcomes for historically resilient students in the U.S. and Ghana.
