Thinking About Inclusion and LD

Produced by the Division for Learning Disabilities (DLD), this teacher’s guide highlights the most current thinking and research on learning disabilities and inclusion and explains what a classroom is like to a child with learning disabilities. The guide also shows teachers how their classroom structures and instructional practices affect their students. This guide is attached to this email and available on the PROCESS TITANium website.

Behavior & Classroom Management

The IRIS Resource Center developed two training modules, Classroom Management (Part 1): Learning the Components of a Comprehensive Behavior Management Plan and Addressing Disruptive and Noncompliant Behaviors (Part 2): Behavioral Interventions that highlight the importance of establishing a comprehensive classroom behavior management system. The modules address classroom behavior management, procedures, rules, consequences, and describe interventions that can be implemented to decrease disruptive and challenging behaviors. To access these modules, please visit http://iris.peabody.vanderbilt.edu.
